EDITORIAL

The lead article in this issue presents a detailed review by David Dennis of the scope for judicial review of charity proceedings within the context of contemporary legal protection of human rights.

This is followed by a report from Myles McGregor-Lowndes on a major international conference on charity law reform in the common law world with particular reference to recent developments in Australia.

We conclude this issue with a review of the second edition of Kerry O'Halloran's book on charity law in Ireland.

As we go to press we are pleased to announce that the Review will shortly be available online via the Key Haven website at www.khpplc.co.uk. The publishers intend to make articles from past issues available online. Future contributions will also be posted to the website as they become available.

We hope that these articles will stimulate debate and discussion among our readers. All correspondence should be addressed to:
